Extreme South Atolls

Laamu, Huvadhoo, Fuvahmulah and Addu

The extreme south of the Maldives is for channel dives full of sharks, night swims with whale sharks and the tiger sharks of Fuvahmulah.

Currents bring big groups of fish and sharks through the channels of Laamu and Huvadhoo, with grey sharks, silvertips, eagle rays and schools of barracuda and jacks.

In Huvadhoo, powerful lights draw plankton and then whale sharks close to the surface at night.

Addu closes the trip with a manta cleaning station and a wreck 134 metres long, covered in table corals, gorgonians and black corals.

The weeks are scheduled from January to April, in the dry monsoon, for the best weather.

DAY 8

Disembark

The cruise ends at one of the southern ports, depending on the departure, with a transfer to the airport.

GOOD TO KNOW

On land and on the way

Fushi Kandu, Laamu

In the first northern channel on the east reef of Laamu, and considered one of the most beautiful dive sites in the archipelago. Grey sharks, silvertips and sometimes tiger sharks, barracuda, eagle rays and schools of fusiliers, jacks and snappers.

Mundhoo Kandu, Laamu

A pass with beautiful coral on both corners and a double step, the first at 25 metres and the second between 35 and 40 metres. The dive is usually on the south corner, full of reef fish, and with the current coming in there are grey and whitetip sharks.

Maamendhoo Kandu, Huvadhoo

A pass too wide to cross, so the dive is on one of the corners. The north corner has a nice inner reef with grey sharks and green turtles, and the south has more sharks on the step at over 30 metres, ending on a small thila full of green turtles.

Kondey Coral Garden, Huvadhoo

In the middle of the channel and almost 2 kilometres long, with dozens of hard coral species covering more than a kilometre. A very easy dive, but divers should be experienced with excellent buoyancy to protect the coral.

Vilingili Kandu, Huvadhoo

A channel very rich in pelagic fish and one of the best known in the atoll. The best part is the step of the channel with many grey sharks, and the two reefs to the north and south give different encounters.

Maarehaa Kandu, Huvadhoo

With Vilingili Kandu, one of the two passes that deserve the trip to this atoll. Many grey sharks, sometimes eagle rays, barracuda and trevally, green turtles and reef fish, and a south corner canyon with eagle rays and stingrays.

Night with whale sharks, Huvadhoo

From January to April, night swims with whale sharks. Powerful lights at the stern of the boat attract plankton, which draws the whale sharks near the surface.

Koddu Shark Point, Huvadhoo

Also called the Shark Hotel, in front of Kooddoo harbour. A wide sandy channel at 28 to 30 metres with coral blocks and steep walls, strong currents and many sharks, mostly spinner and grey reef sharks. For advanced divers.

Tiger Zoo, Fuvahmulah

An easy dive to see tiger sharks at the mouth of the island harbour, on a plateau 10 to 12 metres deep. Divers line up on the seabed and the sharks come, attracted by tuna scraps, for up to 30 minutes before the dive moves to one of the two reefs with the current.

Maa Corner, Addu

An easy dive, current permitting, near the bottom of a channel at 18 to 25 metres, around a large coral block that is a cleaning station for manta rays. Grey and whitetip sharks, napoleon wrasse and eagle rays along the wall.

British Loyalty wreck, Addu

A wreck 134 metres long lying on its port side at 33 metres, with the propeller between 23 and 28 metres. Covered in table corals, soft corals, gorgonians and black corals, with a resident leaf fish and regular turtles.

Non-divers

The cruises suit divers and non-divers, with guided snorkelling, island visits and fishing, and a free try dive in the lagoon for non-divers from 8 years old, with equipment included.

On board

A diving dhoni, a kayak and paddle boards, underwater scooters, and rebreather support on request. Italian and international cuisine, with a bar, a boutique and a massage service.

End of the cruise

Cruises that start and end in Male may finish with an optional visit to Villingili, to see the Save the Beach Centre and the coral restoration site, and snorkel with a marine biologist.
