

GAIA LOVE

Alor

Maumere to Maumere | Alor, Pantar Strait and Lembata

Alor is a constant source of marine life surprises, from tiny creatures to larger fish and marine mammals.

The diving ranges from fishy sites and critter hunting to colourful walls and volcanic black sand, on reefs that are still untouched.

Expect rhinopias, pygmy seahorses, manta rays, schooling dolphins, pilot whales and the occasional migrating blue whale.

The waters are protected to give migrating cetaceans a safe route to their feeding grounds in the deep Banda Sea.

Above the water come the fireworks of one of the country's most active volcanoes, and the free diving children of North Pura.

Your route

STOP 1

The Alor Archipelago

The eastern waters of the Lesser Sunda islands offer a constant source of marine life surprises, from tiny creatures to larger fish and marine mammals, with sites around eastern Flores, Adunara, Solor, Lembata, Pantar, Alor, Pura and Ternate.

STOP 2

Diving

The sites range from fishy sites and critter hunting to colourful walls and volcanic black sand, and suit divers of all experience levels.
You can expect rhinopias, pygmy seahorses, manta rays, schooling dolphins, pilot whales and the occasional migrating blue whale.

STOP 3

Protected waters

The Indonesian government has agreed to protect the area to secure a safe route for migrating cetaceans on their way to feeding grounds in the deep waters of the Banda Sea.

Above the water

There are stunning sunrises and sunsets, the fireworks of one of the country's most active volcanoes, the free diving children of North Pura and the women of Pulau Ternate weaving colourful ikats.

STOP 5

The route

Dive Gaia covers a shorter Lesser Sunda trip within the Banda Sea trip, from Maumere to Ambon, and in the Forgotten Islands trip, from Maumere to Tual in the Kei Islands.
