

GAYA BARU INDAH

Raja Ampat South

Waisai to Waisai | Batanta, Misool and the Dampier Strait

South Raja Ampat, where nutrient rich water brings vast numbers of fish feeding on the upwellings.

Around the small islands of south-eastern Misool, the reefs have pristine hard and soft coral, with mantas, sharks, schools of jacks, tuna and fusiliers.

Batanta has a mountainous interior that is little known, and divers have begun to find fantastic sites along its coastline, with mantas a frequent encounter nearby.

Three evenings have a night dive, and the way back passes through the Dampier Strait for some of its best reefs.

The last evening brings flocks of flying foxes hanging in the trees of Mioskon Island, and a sunset.

Your route

STOP 1

Day 1: Waisai

Check in on board between 10:00 and 12:00, with a welcome drink, your cabin and a check of your dive gear.
The boat leaves Waisai harbour at 13:00 and has a first dive in the afternoon.

STOP 2

Batanta Island and Pulau Dayang

3 dives a day

Batanta is the smallest of the Four Kings islands.
Its mountainous interior is little known, but divers have begun exploring its coastline and found fantastic sites.
Pulau Dayang is often checked out, where mantas are a frequent encounter.

STOP 3

Misool

3 dives a day

Most of the Misool itinerary is in its south-eastern quadrant.
The reefs around the small islands of Balbulol, Daram, Farondi, Yellit and Boo have pristine hard and soft coral and vast numbers of fish feeding on the upwellings in nutrient rich water, with mantas, sharks, schools of jacks, tuna and fusiliers.
Three evenings have a night dive.

STOP 4

Back through the Dampier Strait

On the way back from Misool the boat passes through the Dampier Strait and dives some of its best sites, Blue Magic, Sardine and Cape Kri.
After diving, there is a visit to Mioskon Island, where flocks of flying foxes hang in the trees, and a sunset.

STOP 5

Last day: back to Waisai

No diving

The boat cruises through the island group and reaches Waisai harbour by 12:00, and disembarkation starts after arrival.
27 dives are planned in total.
