

PINDITO

Komodo

Komodo National Park | Saleh Bay, Moyo, Banta and Rinca

The dive spots in Komodo National Park offer unbelievable variety.

One day you can admire rare critters in the morning, and in the afternoon drift along with giant mantas and schools of big eye jacks, over patch reefs, bommies, sheer walls and shallow coral gardens.

The park has more than 1,000 fish species, 260 species of coral and 17 species of whales and dolphins.

In Saleh Bay, fishing boats attract anchovies with lights before sunrise, looking like shimmering stars on the horizon, and whale sharks feed on the catch, so you can snorkel with them.

STOP 2

Marine life

The park has more than 1,000 fish species, 260 species of coral, 70 sponge species, 17 species of whales and dolphins and at least two kinds of sea turtle.

STOP 3

Stop overs

Frequently visited stop overs include Saleh Bay and Moyo, Sangeang, Banta, Tatawa Besar and Gili Lawa Laut, Komodo National Park, Maumere, and Horse Shoe Bay and South Komodo.

STOP 4

Saleh Bay and Moyo

Saleh Bay is a huge bay south east of the island of Moyo, and a recent addition to the stop overs. You can watch the local Bagan fishing boats attract anchovies and krill with lights before sunrise, which look like shimmering stars on the horizon.
The local fishermen and the whale sharks have a symbiotic relationship, as the whale sharks feed on the catch that spills over when the nets are hauled, which gives a chance to snorkel with whale sharks.
